TAX REDUCTION MEASURE BEFORE CHRISTMAS

MAY COME AS A GIFT FROM CONGRESS

HOUSE LEADERS ALSO AIM TO PUT THROUGH ALIEN PROPERTY BILL

FLOOD RELIEF LEGISLATION MAY BE TAKEN UP AFTER THE HOLIDAYS

Washington, Nov. 11.—(UP) — Passage of a tax reduction measure and alien property bill before Christmas will be sought by house leaders, it was announced today by Speaker of the House Longworth on his return to the capital.

Flood relief legislation, he believes, cannot be taken up by the house until after Christmas because of the delay in the army engineers' report which will be used as a basis for a bill.

SENATOR BROOKHART ON FARM RELIEF

Washington, Nov. 11.—President Coolidge cannot blame lack of farm relief legislation upon failure of farm organizations to agree on specific measures, Sen. Brookhart, republican, Iowa, declared here today.

He issued a statement which he said was authorized by the Norris-Borah group of western senators as representing their views.

Commenting on reports that Mr. Coolidge had informed the farm bureau federation, the National Grange and the Farmers' Union, in session here, that they must agree on some specific bill, the statement said:

"To refuse to keep the party's pledge of farm relief upon the pretext of disagreement among any farm leaders is unjustifiable.

"Mr. Coolidge's position is absolutely untenable. I admit the importance of these three great farm organizations. However, in my state only one third of the farmers are members of these organizations. There are 212,000 farmers in the state and as a senator I represent them all. As president, Mr. Coolidge represents them all. I admit that I advised them to vote against him but they didn't follow my advice. They believed he would keep his platform pledge to give agriculture such legislative relief as would bring it up equal to other industries.

"The same pledge was made by both parties, and if the president refuses to proceed with the solution of this problem in accordance with his party pledge, I want to ask democrats and republicans in congress to prepare a bill and pass it over a presidential veto."

Leaders of the three national farm groups yesterday told the president they had been unable to agree on specific relief measures but intended to keep working toward that end.

POSTPONE ARMISTICE DAY AIR DERBY

St. Paul, Nov. 11.—(UP)—The St. Paul-Little Falls-Crookston air derby was postponed today because of bad weather and the soft landing field at Crookston.

In announcing the postponement of the state air classic, Col. L. H. Brittin, of the Northwest Airways corporation, and promoter of the event, declared that the 12 planes entered for the flight will take off as soon as weather conditions permit. He expressed doubt that the classic will be started before early next week.

France and Jugo-Slavia Sign Treaty of Friendship

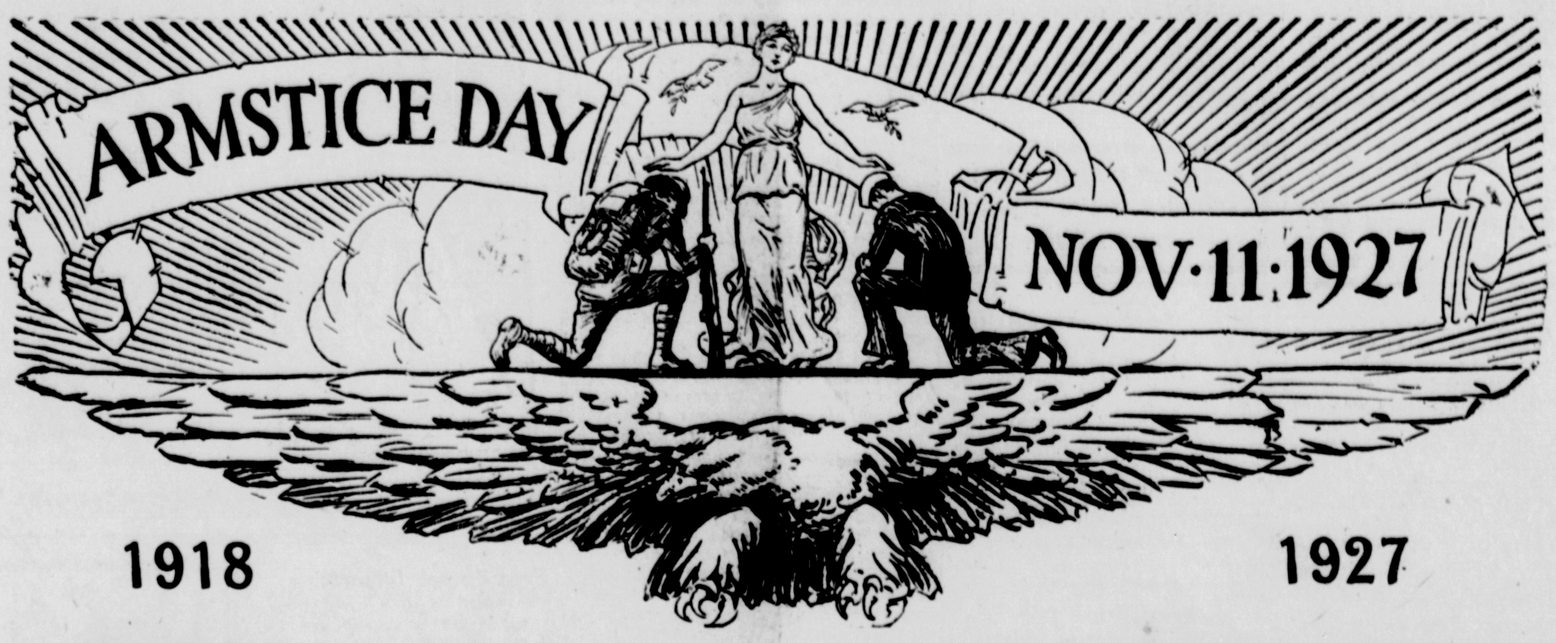

Paris, Nov. 11.—(UP)—Foreign Ministers Briand of France and Marinkovitch of Jugo-Slavia today signed a treaty of friendship, in peace and war.

It is designed to offset Italian influence in the Balkans.

2 BELGIAN AIRMEN START FLIGHT TO BELGIAN CONGO

Brussels, Nov. 11.—(U.P.)—Two Belgian aviators, Lieutenants Machach and Verhaegen, took off from Wevelghem airdrome, near Courtrai in West Flanders, at 7:45 a. m. today on a non-stop flight to Kinshasa in the Belgian Congo, Africa.

Paris, Nov. 11.—(U.P.)—Belgian Lieutenant Medaets, who started from Courtrai at 7:46 a. m. on a non-stop flight to the Congo, crashed today at Laferte-sur-Raube, 100 miles east of Paris, and was badly injured.

NINE YEARS ago today the guns ceased rumbling in France. Peace settled down over the war-torn fields, but it was not until those fields had claimed for their own, thousands of bodies of our boys.

Yes, many of our boys lie sleeping in a foreign land while others of those who did live to return were doomed to bear for life some mark of the battle.

We would not open old wounds; we would not for anything exchange the name friend for enemy, but in justice to those who fell, in justice to those who suffered, in justice to all those who offered life and limb that America should remain America and that the principles of humanity for which she stands should prevail, can we let this day go without making it the occasion of a moment of remembrance and gratitude and a silent repledging of our hearts to the Flag for whose principles they braved death?

RICH LOBBY AGAINST FEDERAL ESTATE TAX

CHARGES SO MADE AROUSE ANIMOSITY OF CONGRESS

ACTIVITY OF PAID LEGISLATIVE AGENTS MAY BE CURBED

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Nov. 11.—(UP) — Charges that a rich lobby is working here for repeal of the federal estate tax have revived congressional animosity toward the freedom enjoyed by lobbyists and brought promises that a bill will be introduced in the coming congress to curb the activity of paid legislative agents.

The form of the bills is undetermined but some, it is indicated, will be framed around the Wisconsin statute requiring registration of all lobbyists, with a public record of their salaries and interests.

The movement is sponsored by the Borah-Norris independent group in the senate and their friends in the house.

Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, is particularly aroused over the freedom given former members of the senate and house to be present on the floor during discussion of measures in which they are interested for personal profit. Many of the known lobbyists in Washington are former members of congress.

Repeatedly they are seen on the floor of both houses, under the courtesy rule permitting ex-senators and representatives the freedom of legislative chambers barred to others.

"If they don't have the decency to remain off the floor when they are employed by outside interests, there should be a law to keep them out," Borah said today.

One difficulty in dealing with the situation by legislation, however, lies in the lack of an exact definition of what a lobbyist is. It is not sought to place hardships on those having constitutional rights to appear in behalf of legislation.

The house ways and means committee, in tax hearings just closed, heard Rep. Rainey, democrat, Illinois question witnesses concerning the estate tax repeal lobby, but little if any definite evidence was obtained.

ARMISTICE DAY

(By United Press)

A world which 9 years ago emerged from the most disastrous war ever fought paused today to remember the millions who died in that conflict.

In the midst of the solemn regret for the dead in this country, was an almost general declaration that America may be called on again to go to war.

Speakers urged adequate preparedness.

Edward F. Spafford, commander of the American Legion, said in an address in St. Louis that a greater war was coming. He advocated a mighty mobilization of the nation's men and resources when it does come.

"There are war clouds on the horizon at the present moment," Dwight F. Davis, secretary of war, said in a Washington address.

Rep. John Q. Tilson, majority leader, urged in a New Haven address a standing army and navy that would afford sufficient national protection.

In Harrisburg, Ky., powerful preparedness was urged by Dan Sowers, director of the Americanization Commission of the American Legion.

In London, on the other hand, a great propaganda movement in favor of disarmament as the only way to prevent a new war was begun by statesmen, newspaper publishers and others.

The most striking note of the Armistice Day celebration here and abroad was, as in other years, the two minutes of silence at 11 A. M. in honor of the dead. The machinery of business and transportation of great cities paused while the people turned their thoughts to the fallen.

Other observances included ceremonies at the tomb of the unknown warrior in the capitals of the allied countries and visits to the cemeteries.

In Pittsburgh, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the war president, spoke at the unveiling of a plaque in his memory.

The United Press wire was silent for two minutes at ten A. M. in remembrance of the dead of the world war.

INVESTIGATE ATTEMPT TO DESTROY BRIDGE

LATTER IS A FIVE-SPAN RAILROAD TRESTLE NEAR WALSENBURG

FIRE HAD BEEN SET TO CRIPPLE MAIN LINE, IS THEORY ADVANCED

Denver, Colo., Nov. 11.—(UP) — With a score of armed men sent to reinforce state police in Colorado coal fields, authorities today were investigating an attempt to destroy a five-span railroad trestle near Walsenburg.

Investigation was pushed on the theory that the fire was set to cripple the main lines of the Colorado & Southern railroad and hamper shipment of what coal is being produced despite the I. W. W. strike for the Jacksonville wage scale.

The fire started just ten minutes before a south bound passenger train was scheduled to pass over the bridge.

A party of tourists discovered the fire and reported it to Deputy Sheriff King Murray.

Following complaints of working miners that they have been visited by small delegations of strikers who warned them not to continue work, additional state law enforcement officers were ordered to Walsenburg by Governor Adams.

The strike assumed the aspects of a "lockout" in Freemont county where all the larger mines have closed indefinitely.

Only a few independent mines now are operating in Freemont county.

Sentiment for a peace parley to end the strike met an obstacle in the northern area when 2,000 armed men voted to continue the walkout.

In Walsenburg strike leaders favored peace and quiet until Monday. If efforts to petition the state industrial commission asking for a conference between miners and operators fail by next week, many of the leaders are ready to resume picketing campaigns.

George M. Taylor, industrial commissioner, in a conference with Gov. Adams reported 75 per cent of the southern miners have gone to work. He predicted that between 85 and 90 per cent will be digging coal next week.

MURDERED WOMAN WITH ICE PICK, AUTO HAMMER, SHOTGUN

San Bernardino, Calif., Nov. 11.—(U.P.)—After murdering Mrs. Grace Hardesty with an ice pick, an automobile hammer, and a shotgun, Ralph Zavalas, Portuguese interpreter, committed suicide here late Thursday.

The bodies of the pair were found lying side by side on a little used road near the city limits.

Police reported the double slaying probably followed an attempt of Mrs. Hardesty to break off an "affair" with Zavalas.

Mrs. Hardesty's husband is an employe of a local newspaper and was formerly a commercial telegrapher.

An inquest will be held here Saturday.

Precautions Taken To Guard Soviet Disarmament Delegates

London, Nov. 11.—(U.P.)—Swiss authorities have received information from abroad, the Exchange Telegraph Geneva correspondent wired today, which has led them to take rigorous precautions to guard Soviet delegates to the preparatory disarmament commission meeting here Nov. 30.

The correspondent said that a private hotel would be reserved for the delegates and that a strong force of detectives would be on guard constantly.

It is expected that Foreign Minister Tchitcherin or a statesman of similar importance will head the Russian delegation.

GERMAN EMBASSY FLIES AMERCAN FLAG TODAY

Berlin, Nov. 11.—(U.P.)—The foreign office has instructed the Germany embassy at Washington to fly the American flag today, thus avoiding the possibility of a repetition of the incident that occurred during the stay there of former Ambassador Weidfeldt.

RUTH ELDER COMES HOME TO HONORS TODAY

JUST A MONTH AFTER SHE STARTED ATLANTIC FLIGHT FROM LONG ISLAND

CITY THAT HONORED LINDBERGH PREPARES SPECIAL TRIBUTE FOR HER

New York, Nov. 11.—(UP) — A month after she started from Long Island, the first American girl to attempt a flight over the Atlantic, Ruth Elder, came home today.

With George Haldeman, her companion on the daring adventure that ended in the sea beside the Dutch tanker Barendrecht, Miss Elder reached quarantine on the Aquitania at 10 A. M.

They were taken aboard the municipal cutter Macom and headed for the battery, where unique honors awaited Miss Elder.

Few women ever attain quite the distinction of the smiling little "Dixie Flier." The city that honored Lindbergh, Byrd and other masculine heroes of adventure prepared special tribute for her.

The welcoming party was headed by Grover Whalen, representing the mayor as he had done for all the other trans-Atlantic flight receptions this year. Interest was centered on the meeting of Miss Elder and her husband, Lyle Womack. He had said Miss Elder would return to Panama with him, while it was reported from the Aquitania that she had plans to be the first woman to take off for Europe next spring.

Mrs. Virginia Haldeman, wife of the American girl's pilot, also was in the party, which included representatives of the National Woman's party of Anniston, Ala., and citizens from Wheeling, W. Va., who sponsored the flight.

Upon their arrival at the Battery, the aviators will be taken to the Saint Regis hotel for lunch. At one o'clock they will be officially welcomed by Mayor James J. Walker at city hall.

Tonight Miss Elder will attend the Ziegfeld Follies and the National Woman's Party will give her a dinner at the Ambassador hotel Sunday night.

Miss Elder is expected to leave for Washington Monday to be received by the president.

The Macom reached the Battery at 11:50, where the fliers were greeted by a large crowd that had waited for hours despite the cold, misty weather.

GRAND JURY IN OIL CASE NEARING CLOSE

4 OR 5 BURNS AGENTS TO APPEAR BEFORE THAT BODY TODAY

SEVERAL NEWSPAPERMEN MAY BE CALLED WITH DETECTIVE CHIEF

By HERBERT LITTLE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Nov. 11.—The government today put finishing touches on its network of grand jury evidence designed to disclose a jury-tampering conspiracy in connection with the Fall-Sinclair oil trial.

Indictments, if voted, will come early next week, it is anticipated.

Harry F. Sinclair and two of his lieutenants, Mason Day and Sheldon Clark, are believed most likely to be named. All three already are charged in government complaints with conspiracy to obstruct justice through jury-tampering.

There is a possibility, however, that a "blanket indictment" may include also some Burns Detective Agency officials and operatives, as a result of the intensive shadowing of the trial jurors.

Four or five Burns agents were to appear before the grand jury today. Several newspaperment who heard William J. Burns, detective chief, make a statement Monday setting forth evidence which he said indicated government jury-tampering, also may be called. Burns made the charges after appearing before the grand jury, and the government since has discredited his statement through denials and alibis by the juror and the justice department official mentioned.

Meanwhile Clark, vice-president of the Sinclair Refining Company and one of the Dempsey-Tunney fight judges, returned to Chicago. He was free on $10,000 bond under the latest tampering conspiracy charge, made yesterday after he followed Day's example in refusing to answer grand jury questions.

Clark is scheduled to have a hearing November 25, before U. S. Commissioner Needham Turnage but this will be cancelled as a matter of form if indictments are returned next week.

District Attorney Peyton Gordon expected to execute today his repeatedly deferred "lineup" of the 15 detectives before the jurors, to see if the shadowed can identify the "shadows." This will be in secret, and results will be reported only to the grand jury, Gordon said.

Gordon and his assistant Neil Burkinshaw, expect to present a few "odds-and-ends" today and tomorrwo, and close the evidence. If indictments are decided on the jury will ask Gordon to draft an indictment. This will take a day or two. After completion and revision, such an indictment would be presented in open court and made public.

Facts gathered by Gordon and his men so far made public have shown no actual jury-tampering—although two jurors, John J. Costinett and Gardner P. Grenfell, said they were approached by unidentified persons during the trial—but it is pointed out that under the conspiracy statutes, only intent and activities toward such an end need be shown.

"If men conspire to blow up a bridge, and buy a bomb, that's conspiracy, and the bridge need not be blown up to consummate the crime," Gordon said.

BRAINERD 25 YEARS AGO

From the Daily Dispatch

November 11, 1902

On Sunday evening Rev. M. L. Hutton will deliver his farewell sermon at the First Congregational church in this city and will leave a day or two later for the coast where he has accepted a pastorate of a church in the state of Washington.

Master Jack Hartley is seriously ill with typhoid fever.

County Surveyor Elect J. F. Bartlett has returned from White Earth where he has ben surveying for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Johnston returned this morning from their wedding trip. They visited St. Louis for a week.

Mrs. Douglas arrived in the city this afternoon from Connecticut to visit her brother, Judge Alderman, for a short time.

It will be glad news to the people of Brainerd to learn that Frank B. Johnson is slightly improved today. He held his own during the night and is resting quietly today and there is a slight chance of his recovery now. He underwent an operation for appendicitis a few days ago.

An unusually large number of licenses have been issued by Auditor Mahlum to deer and moose hunters in Crow Wing county, aggregating 402. This is the largest number issued in many years. Of course there are several non-residents licenses which are not included in this number.

39 Arrests Made of Plotters Against Lithuanian Government

Warsaw, Poland, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Thirty-nine arrests have been made following discovery of an extensive plot to overthrow the Lithuanian government, dispatches from Kovno declared today.

The arrests were made at Wilkomirsch, it was said, after investigation in ten towns had revealed plans for the revolt.

Four of the arrested men are to be courtmartialled.

It was added that an arms depot was found near the Latvian frontier.

CHECKUP REVEALS $35,000 STOLEN

DESCRIPTIONS ARE VAGUE

Four Bandits Who Robbed Range Bank Are Still at Large

General W. F. Rhinow, St. Paul, head of the Minnesota bureau of criminal identification and party of three investigators left Ironton late yesterday afternoon for St. Paul after examining into the Ironton bank robbery on Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock when four yeggs held up the bank and escaped with $35,000 in gold, silver and currency.

The best description of the bandits is that given by Wilford Johnson, aged 17, who happened to walk past the bank as the three bandits came out and entered the car which was seated the fourth man. He said they all wore slouch hats, top coats, were well dressed and clean shaven. Two wore light and two wore dark top coats.

T. S. Nyhus, assistant cashier of the bank, said the bandit that ordered him around was a slim man, 30 to 40 years old with thin face. The bandit spoke in low tones and apparently one of them was in charge and gave his orders in a low order.

John Humphrey, Deerwood, whose men were working on the road south of Deerwood, saw a sedan come from the south at 9:30 a. m. the day of the robbery and at 4:30 p. m. the same car shot past them at a high rate of speed. Four men were in the car.

Frank G. Gujer, Minneapolis, adjustor of the American Surety Co., has adjusted the loss at approximately $35,000.

Peter McHugh, N. P. conductor out of Deerwood, lost a one carat diamond ring he had entrusted to the bank. One of the bandits found it in the vault.

Cashier Nyhus doubled his fist as he was ordered to lie on the floor and so concealed the two carat diamond ring he was wearing.

The loot of the bandits after the loss was checked up was found to consist of $33,000 in currency, of five, ten and twenty dollar bills and $2,000 in gold and silver making a bulky lot to carry.

Strange Occupation

A house-to-house canvasser went the rounds at Memphis, Tenn., drumming up business to put himself out of business. Going from door to door he offered enameled signs for sale. On each was inscribed, "Peddlers Keep Out."

DESCRIPTIONS ARE VAGUE

Four Bandits Who Robbed Range Bank Are Still at Large

General W. F. Rhinow, St. Paul, head of the Minnesota bureau of criminal identification and party of three investigators left Ironton late yesterday afternoon for St. Paul after examining into the Ironton bank robbery on Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock when four yeggs held up the bank and escaped with $35,000 in gold, silver and currency.

The best description of the bandits is that given by Wilford Johnson aged 17, who happened to walk past the bank as the three bandits came out and entered the car which was seated the fourth man. He said they all wore slouch hats, top coats, were well dressed and clean shaven. Two wore light and two wore dark top coats.

T. S. Nyhus, assistant cashier of the bank, said the bandit that ordered him around was a slim man, 30 to 40 years old with thin face. The bandit spoke in low tones and apparently one of them was in charge and gave his orders in a low order.

John Humphrey, Deerwood, whose men were working on the road south of Deerwood, saw a sedan come from the south at 9:30 a. m. the day of the robbery and at 4:30 p. m. the same car shot past them at a high rate of speed. Four men were in the car.

Frank G. Gujer, Minneapolis, adjustor of the American Surety Co., has adjusted the loss at approximately $35,000.

Peter McHugh, N. P. conductor out of Deerwood, lost a one carat diamond ring he had entrusted to the bank. One of the bandits found it in the vault.

Cashier Nyhus doubled his fist as he was ordered to lie on the floor and so concealed the two carat diamond ring he was wearing.

The loot of the bandits after the loss was checked up was found to consist of $33,000 in currency, of five, ten and twenty dollar bills and $2,000 in gold and silver making a bulky lot to carry.

Strange Occupation

A house-to-house canvasser went the rounds at Memphis, Tenn., drumming up business to put himself out of business. Going from door to door he offered enameled signs for sale. On each was inscribed, "Peddlers Keep Out."

TO SEE THEIR HEROES PLAY

"CAMP Lincoln for Boys," on Hubert lake, conducted by R. F. B. Cote, an outdoor school for boys, is nationally known and as its corps of instructors has university men of prominence. The Camp Lincoln boys are frequent visitors in Brainerd.

They publish at intervals "The Lincoln Rail Splitter" and the last number, printed on Brainerd Dispatch presses, is devoted to the reunion and banquet to honor Joesting.

Following the custom of former years Camp Lincoln boys will occupy a block of seats to see Minnesota perform on the gridiron. Although the Minnesota Homecoming date is usually chosen for the reunion, the closing day of camp life found everyone greatly favoring the Drake game. So everyone is planning to see each other and have a big time November 12.

Three reasons caused the boys to select the Drake-Minnesota game. Joesting and Barnes will oppose each other. Barnes is Drake's big star and Joesting is Minnesota's Big Bertha. At camp last summer, Joesting directed the senior division while Barnes was a councillor in the junior division. Both occupy the position of idols among boys and both are backfield stars.

Former campers of Des Moines, Lafe Young, Bill Prouty, Bob Everett, Bob Porter, can likely be present. Of course, the famous Chuck Everett will be on deck. Chuck is a Drake U all-star with eleven letters to his credit. He has been Drake tennis captain and Rockne's All-Western quarterback selection. Last summer Chuck was director of the junior division at the camp, his third summer with Camp Lincoln for Boys.

The Drake-Minnesota game will be Joesting's last home game. The Drake game will be the last chance to see Herb in a Minnesota uniform on home grounds.

A big banquet will follow the game, a reunion, eats and entertainment all served in the Men's Union Building on the University of Minnesota campus, the special hall being the faculty banquet hall.

BRAINERD'S FIRST ARMISTICE DAY

BRAINERD'S first Armistice Day celebration was a premature one and held on November 8, 1918. The patriotic feeling of the people gave vent to all manner of celebration, winding up with cannon fire that injured several young men. And then came the reaction, something had happened and the war had not been officially closed.

Came the 11th of November and it proved to be Armistice Day in fact. The Brainerd Dispatch received the news by United Press telephone in the early morning hours, and after some deliberation an extra was issued at 5:45 a. m. The deliberation occurred so that all would be convinced this Armistice Day would stick.

It was snowing just like today, but that did not deter the enthusiasm of the crowds which massed in the downtown business section. "The boys are out of the trenches and coming home," was the thought in everyone's mind.

The boys gave their all in that war. When life itself is laid on the altar of freedom, no more can be done. We honor those who will never come back and those who are with us today. Our duty is largely to the living, but we must never forget the boys who passed beyond.

The American Legion has a peace time program which will benefit all America and which will work towards better citizenship. Having faced the problems of war unflinchingly, the Legion does not shirk the duties of peace.

FEDERICK O. BLUE tells concisely what causes nations to decay. He says history teaches that great nations of the earth—nations that rose to splendor and fell to decay—came to their end, not so much by forces without, as the undermining forces within—forces within that destroyed the morals and virtues of the citizens and thereby destroyed the nation's first line of defense—a healthy, vigorous and righteous citizenship.

SOME Indiana man, we believe, offered President Calvin Coolidge a farm in Indiana and dared him to farm it and make it pay. After what happened to Vermont in the way of floods and soil erosion we believe Coolidge's acceptance of the farm after his presidential term may be possible as he has expressed a wish to go home and just whittle for a year or two.

COMMUNICATION—radio, telegraph, telephone, publication of books, magazines, newspapers, exchange of letters—all this tends to develop world views, says a writer, C. B. Wivel. In other words, communication breaks down boundary barriers and tends to a clearer understanding of the other fellow's problems.

OUR Minnesota-Notre Dame game of Brainerd versus Crosby-Ironton will be played on the Crosby field this afternoon. Like its counterpart in the big colleges, the athletes face a wet field and snow, squally weather. That will slow down forward passing and make the ball slippery.

CHRISTMAS is just around the corner. The lady who wore her nerves to shreds last year preparing gifts and made a solemn promise she would start on the Fourth of July with her list of gifts, has again failed and is fidgeting about, worried again over the coming of the holiday.

WE notice the Chicago Tribune has a platform of seven points for metropolitan Chicago and the first advocates making the Windy City the first city of the world. How much better if that read, making it the safest city in the world.

WHEN we saw the advertisement of the Hotel Pennsylvania in New York, Statler operated, 2200 rooms with 2200 baths, we came to the conclusion there must be an awful swish of water on a Saturday night.

SNUFF in the old days was used to promote a good, healthy sneeze. Nowadays many use it in the same way as chewing tobacco. The lower lip acts as a cup to retain a fingerful of snuff.

THERE are two tragedies in life, the fat woman who cannot gain her ideal of slenderness, and the thin woman who can never hope to gain curves.

GOVERNMENT BONDS FOUND IN HOT WATER BOTTLE

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 11.—(UP)—Five persons including two women were under arrest here today following discovery by city detectives last night of $26,100 worth of government bonds in a hot water bottle in the bathroom of a rooming house here.

The bonds were a part of a $46,000 loot stolen from a bank at Wynne Wood, Okla., in a robbery Nov. 3. The loot consisted of $38,500 in bonds and $7,500 cash.

One of those arrested was One-Legged Lawrence (Red) Calloway, bank robber, pardoned from the penitentiary at Huntsville, Texas, by Gov. Miriam (Ma) Ferguson. The others were Vivian Caloway, 28, wife of Caloway, identified as one of those who drove a motor car away from the bank robbery scene, Raymond Wilson, 30, and Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Freeman, proprietors of the rooming house.

Their arrest folowed information received by A. B. Cooper, personal investigator for Gov. Henry S. Johnston of Oklahoma, who had been engaged in tracing the bonds since they were stolen.

Calloway had been picked up twice this year as a suspect in bank robberies at Tuttle, Okla., and Belton, Mo.

STRIKING HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS VOICE DEMANDS

Cudahy, Wis., Nov. 11.—(U.P.)—Striking high school students here continued firm today in their demands that Superintendent E. C. Seifert be returned to his post.

Seifert was dismissed on charges of "extravagance." He countered with charges that the cause of his dismissal was a quarrel with a board member.

The students then took up his fight and about 400—all but 10 of those enrolled—refused to attend classes.

CHRISTMAS is just around the corner. The lady who wore her nerves to shreds last year preparing gifts and made a solemn promise she would start on the Fourth of July with her list of gifts, has again failed and is fidgeting about, worried again over the coming of the holiday.

WE notice the Chicago Tribune has a platform of seven points for metropolitan Chicago and the first advocates making the Windy City the first city of the world. How much better if that read, making it the safest city in the world.

WHEN we saw the advertisement of the Hotel Pennsylvania in New York, Statler operated, 2200 rooms with 2200 baths, we came to the conclusion there must be an awful swish of water on a Saturday night.

SNUFF in the old days was used to promote a good, healthy sneeze. Nowadays many use it in the same way as chewing tobacco. The lower lip acts as a cup to retain a fingerful of snuff.

THERE are two tragedies in life, the fat woman who cannot gain her ideal of slenderness, and the thin woman who can never hope to gain curves.

GOVERNMENT BONDS FOUND IN HOT WATER BOTTLE

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 11.—(UP)—Five persons including two women were under arrest here today following discovery by city detectives last night of $26,100 worth of government bonds in a hot water bottle in the bathroom of a rooming house here.

The bonds were a part of a $46,000 loot stolen from a bank at Wynne Wood, Okla., in a robbery Nov. 3. The loot consisted of $38,500 in bonds and $7,500 cash.

One of those arrested was One-Legged Lawrence (Red) Calloway, bank robber, pardoned from the penitentiary at Huntsville, Texas, by Gov. Miriam (Ma) Ferguson. The others were Vivian Caloway, 28, wife of Caloway, identified as one of those who drove a motor car away from the bank robbery scene, Raymond Wilson, 30, and Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Freeman, proprietors of the rooming house.

Their arrest folowed information received by A. B. Cooper, personal investigator for Gov. Henry S. Johnston of Oklahoma, who had been engaged in tracing the bonds since they were stolen.

Calloway had been picked up twice this year as a suspect in bank robberies at Tuttle, Okla., and Belton, Mo.

STRIKING HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS VOICE DEMANDS

Cudahy, Wis., Nov. 11.—(U.P.)—Striking high school students here continued firm today in their demands that Superintendent E. C. Seifert be returned to his post.

Seifert was dismissed on charges of "extravagance." He countered with charges that the cause of his dismissal was a quarrel with a board member.

The students then took up his fight and about 400—all but 10 of those enrolled—refused to attend classes.

BRAINERD SCORES TWO POINTS ON A SAFETY, 1ST PERIOD

BLOCKED A CROSBY PUNT ON THE THREE-YARD LINE

ALL OF CROSBY-IRONTON RUSHES STOPPED, LINE HOLDS

With the score 2 to 0 in favor of Brainerd high school in their game with Crosby-Ironton at Crosby field this afternoon, the local team gives every indication of coming through victorious.

Brainerd scored its two points in the first period on a safety, blocking a Crosby punt on the three-yard line.

The field is slippery. There is snow on the ground in patches. There is much fumbling on both sides. A strong northwest wind is blowing and the temperature ranges near 28 degrees. But the game is so exciting that the large crowd never minds the wintry blasts.

Brainerd, so far, has stopped every one of Crosby-Ironton's hitherto famous rushes. Close play is the rule.

The score still stood at 2-0 in favor of Brainerd at the end of the half.

Final—C.-I. 12; Brainerd 2.

SATURDAY'S BILL OF FARE IN FOOTBALL GAMES

2 IMPORTANT INTERSECTIONAL ONES BEAR ON BIG TEN LEADERSHIP

MORE THAN 210,000 PERSONS WILL WITNESS THESE 3 CONTESTS

By CLARK B. KELSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, Nov. 11—Two important intersectional football games and one contest with an important bearing on the Big Ten conference championship head Saturday's football schedule for midwestern college teams. More than 210,000 persons will witness these three contests.

While the powerful Notre Dame team is representing the midlands against the Army in Yankee Stadium, New York, another service eleven—the Navy—meets Michigan at Ann Arbor. Although all four teams involved in these games have been tied or defeated this season, they stil have great appeal to the football fan. More than 83,000 tickets have been sold for the Michigan-Navy clash. Army-Notre Dame will attract approximately 75,000 persons.

At Champaign, Ill., Bob Zuppke's University of Illinois eleven, which alone of the Big Ten elevens is undefeated and untied by conference opponents, will attract 53,000 persons. The crowd will see Illinois in action against Chicago, a team which since 1892 has often spelled trouble for Champaign elevens. Since that time, Chicago has won 17 games, lost eleven and tied three against Illinois.

The Chicago team has been beaten this year by Ohio and Michigan but the Maroons habitually arise to their greatest heights against the Illini.

Two other Big Ten games are on the schedule which will determine ranking of the teams. Both are homecoming contests.

At Northwestern, where the injured list is longer than the roster of unimpaired players, Indiana will attempt to win her first Big Ten contest of the year.

At Madison, Wis., the Iowa team will attempt the same trick. The Hawkeyes have lost their last ten starts against Big Ten teams, but hope to retrieve themselves against the Badgers.

At Minneapolis, the Minnesota team which tied Notre Dame will meet Drake of the Missouri valley conference. The other Big Ten schools have picked soft spots outside the conference. Ohio State plays Denison at Columbus; Purdue meets Franklin at Lafayette.

A non-conference game which is attracting considerable attention is the intersectional contest between Holy Cross and Marquette at Milwaukee. Both teams have been beaten this season, but both play a fine brand of football. "Swede" Gebert, passing halfback for Marquette, is said to be one of the best backs in the west this season.

Possibilities in Brick

Of the many good qualities of common brick, one of special interest is its flexibility. Due to the small size of the units the possibilities are almost unlimited for the wide range of effects. Not only can a variety of shades be secured by differences in bands, joint and mortar color, but by selection, pattern work may be successfully accomplished. The use of "arch" or "lammy" brick assists in obtaining a ruggedness of surface, difficult of accomplishment with other materials. It may be obtained in varying degrees of irregularity, and has been successfully combined with the standard brick.

MICKIE SAYS:

BROKE PACT DRAWN BY HARVARD, YALE, PRINCETON

PRINCETON AND HARVARD URGED REINSTATEMENT OF BACKFIELD STAR

YALE ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION CHOSE TO ABIDE BY LETTER OF AGREEMENT

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 11.—Bruce Caldwell, whose football performances this season made him one of the backfield stars of the nation, never again will play football for Yale.

The board of control of the Yale Athletic Association last night refused to reinstate Eli's hero who was disqualified earlier this week after it was learned he had played two minor games with the Brown freshmen several years ago.

The ruling was in accordance with a pact drawn between Yale, Harvard and Princeton several years ago. Even though Princeton and Harvard—the former having a game with Yale Saturday—had urged Yale to reinstate the star, the Athletic Association bided by the letter of the agreement.

In a statement given out after the conference, the board said:

"The board of control of the Yale University Athletic Association deeply appreciate the generous initiative of both Princeton and Harvard in suggesting that Bruce Caldwell be permitted to play in the coming games with Yale.

lllllllllllll .... ks—Co;hle dlll

"Both Harvard and Princeton clearly and courteously recognized that under our dual agreement final responsibility for determining all questions of eligibility rests with the university concerned.

"Under the existing rules, Caldwell is clearly ineligible to compete in football against Princeton and Harvard and it seems equally clear to us that no single university can change the rule. After careful consideration our board has accordingly unanimously reaffirmed the decision already announced."

Caldwell returned to the campus yesterday after a hurried trip to his home. He reported at the practice field, donned his uniform and coached the varsity backfield in passing.

Commenting on the decision of the Yale board of athletic control last night, Coach Tad Jones said:

"PROMOTER'S WAR" ON CAULIFLOWER ALLEY, NEW YORK

MULLENS, FUGAZY, FITZSIMMONS TO QUARREL WITH RICKARD

ANNOUNCING IMPENDING OVERTHROW OF THE LATTER DYNASTY

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Nov. 11.—(U.P.)—The annual "promoter's war" was raging down cauliflower alley today.

Each year, along about this time, Jim Mullens and Humbert J. Fugazy and Floyd Fitzsimmons and some of the lesser lights of the fight promotion racket rise up and announce the impending overthrow of the Rickard dynasty.

And each year, along about summer time, Tex is alone in the field, with the heavyweight champion and contender jumping through the hoop every time he snaps his fingers.

In the meantime, however, the boys must have their say. So Jim Mullens is traveling eastward today "prepared to sign Gene Tunney for a championship bout next year," and Humbert J. Fugazy lets it be known that he has a $500,000 guarantee ready for the champion "any time Gene wants to exercise his fountain pen."

Floyd Fitzsimmons has not been heard from as yet, but he should check into the ballyhoo before night-fall.

Thus the promoters war on Rickard, who has very little to say except that they are full of prunes.

One thing must be said for Tunney. He certainly aids and abets the ballyhoo of the lesser lights of cauliflowerdom. Gene seems to get cantankerous himself, around this time of year, and is ever ready to contribute to the anvil chorus which beats about Tex Rickard's entirely uncauliflowered ears.

"As for me, I'm not under Rickard's management," adds the champ.

"Tunney says he's not tied to Rickard," they proclaim.

"I'll match him," says Mullens.

"And I, and I," chorus the others.

Gene chimes in with a statement to the effect that he wants to fight three times in 1928, which would seem to provide enough material for several promoters.

Tex Rickard shifts his cigar over to the other corner of his mouth and says that Tunney, too, is full of p[illegible]. Tex knows how many wor[illegible]'s championship heavyweight fights can be held in a twelve-month without killing the goose that's laying the golden egg.

Exactly one.

Philadelphia sportsmen are said to have entered the promotorial war zone with an offer of $750,000 to Tunney for a bout there next summer. Mullens has selected Chicago, although he points out that Chairman Jim Farley of the New York State athletic commission has given him permission to stage a heavyweight championship fight here in New York.

Which certainly was nice of Mr. Farley.

Humbert Fugazy, who got the Tunney matching bee in his bonnet a year ago, and was badly stung, is treading a bit warily this time. But Humbert says he has "been approached by representatices of Gene Tunney regarding the promotion of the next championship fight. Humbert has a $500,000 promise ready for the next approacher.

Floyd Fitzsimmons always was my favorite winter promoter of summer bouts. It seemed as though his imagination stretched further with less provocation than that of any of the others. Probably Floyd will be along with an offer for Michigan City, million dollar guarantee and all the trimmings.

After a while the storm will subside, and in the good old summer time Tex Rickard will go ahead without any particular fuss and feathers and attend to the promotion of the next heavyweight championship fight.

Keeping Watermelons

The bureau of plant industry says that by coating a watermelon with paraffin it may be kept quite well until Christmas, although the quality will be inferior. There is no way to keep a watermelon all winter satisfactorily.

YALE-PRINCETON, ARMY-NOTRE DAME

THESE LEAD IN STRENUOUS GAMES OF THE EASTERN SECTOR

New York, Nov. 11. — (U.P.)—A wealth of good football games, led by Yale-Princeton and Army-Notre Dame, are on Saturday's football schedule for the east.

New York and New Haven will be the scenes of the immense crowds.

Here Knute Rockne will bring his thus far undefeated Irish to play the stubborn Army team. It is estimated 75,000 people will watch this annual game.

Yale bowl will be the scene of the other big eastern game when the Tiger advances, unbeaten, on the crippled Yale team. Yale is crippled sorely. It has lost the services of Bruce Caldwell, star back, through ineligibility. Odds favor Princeton.

Harvard meets Brown. The famous "Iron Men" of last season have been unable to do much this year.

The powerful New York university team journeys down to State College, Pa., to play Penn State.

A game of great interest will be at Pittsburgh where the undefeated Pitt team meets Nebraska university. Nebraska has been beaten but once—by Missouri—and has a powerful attack centering around Presnell.

Malodorous Bilge Water

The water that collects in bilges has a peculiar fetid odor which is very strong if the bilges are not cleaned often. In the navy bilges are pumped out at least once daily and thoroughly cleaned once a week.

HANDICAP DOUBLES TOURNEY OPENS AT ALLEYS SUNDAY

ENTRIES WILL CARRY THE HANDICAP AS ESTABLISHED IN THE CITY BOWLING LEAGUE

ROBERT BLOCK, PROPRIETOR, RECEIVES NECESSARY SANCTION FOR FOUR ALLEYS

A handicap round robin doubles tourney will start at Block's bowling alleys next Sunday, November 13, and will continue until the following Saturday night.

Entries will carry the handicap as established in the city league, and will roll a game on each of the four alleys.

Bowlers may enter as often as they like providing they make a change in partners. The winners will be declared "doubles champions" of the city league.

Robert Block, proprietor of the alleys stated today that the City Bowling Association and the City Bowling League teams, as well as the bowling alleys have been sanctioned by the American Bowling Congress and the necessary credentials, neatly framed, are now hanging in the alleys.

These sanctions show that the alleys are regulation in every way, and that bowlers from all regulation alleys may bowl on them and receive national recognition for high scores bowled. Also, all teams in the city may bowl in any recognized A. B. C. tournament without paying any extra fees.

MICKIE SAYS:

BROKE PACT DRAWN BY HARVARD, YALE, PRINCETON

PRINCETON AND HARVARD URGED REINSTATEMENT OF BACKFIELD STAR

YALE ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION CHOSE TO ABIDE BY LETTER OF AGREEMENT

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 11.—Bruce Caldwell, whose football performances this season made him one of the backfield stars of the nation, never again will play football for Yale.

The board of control of the Yale Athletic Association last night refused to reinstate Eli's hero who was disqualified earlier this week after it was learned he had played two minor games with the Brown freshmen several years ago.

The ruling was in accordance with a pact drawn between Yale, Harvard and Princeton several years ago. Even though Princeton and Harvard—the former having a game with Yale Saturday—had urged Yale to reinstate the star, the Athletic Association bided by the letter of the agreement.

In a statement given out after the conference, the board said:

"The board of control of the Yale University Athletic Association deeply appreciate the generous initiative of both Princeton and Harvard in suggesting that Bruce Caldwell be permitted to play in the coming games with Yale.

lllllllllllll .... ks—Co;hlc dlll

"Both Harvard and Princeton clearly and courteously recognized that under our dual agreement final responsibility for determining all questions of eligibility rests with the university concerned.

"Under the existing rules, Caldwell is clearly ineligible to compete in football against Princeton and Harvard and it seems equally clear to us that no single university can change the rule. After careful consideration our board has accordingly unanimously reaffirmed the decision already announced."

Caldwell returned to the campus yesterday after a hurried trip to his home. He reported at the practice field, donned his uniform and coached the varsity backfield in passing.

Commenting on the decision of the Yale board of athletic control last night, Coach Tad Jones said:

"There's really nothing I can say except that I'm awfully sorry for Bruce."

"PROMOTER'S WAR" ON CAULIFLOWER ALLEY, NEW YORK

MULLENS, FUGAZY, FITZSIMMONS TO QUARREL WITH RICKARD

ANNOUNCING IMPENDING OVERTHROW OF THE LATTER DYNASTY

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Nov. 11.—(U.P.)—The annual "promoter's war" was raging down cauliflower alley today.

Each year, along about this time, Jim Mullens and Humbert J. Fugazy and Floyd Fitzsimmons and some of the lesser lights of the fight promotion racket rise up and announce the impending overthrow of the Rickard dynasty.

And each year, along about summer time, Tex is alone in the field, with the heavyweight champion and contender jumping through the hoop every time he snaps his fingers.

In the meantime, however, the boys must have their say. So Jim Mullens is traveling eastward today "prepared to sign Gene Tunney for a championship bout next year," and Humbert J. Fugazy lets it be known that he has a $500,000 guarantee ready for the champion "any time Gene wants to exercise his fountain pen."

Floyd Fitzsimmons has not been heard from as yet, but he should check into the ballyhoo before night-fall.

Thus the promoters war on Rickard, who has very little to say except that they are full of prunes.

One thing must be said for Tunney. He certainly aids and abets the ballyhoo of the lesser lights of cauliflowerdom. Gene seems to get cantankerous himself, around this time of year, and is ever ready to contribute to the anvil chorus which beats about Tex Rickard's entirely uncauliflowered ears.

"Everyone knows Tex appointed Leo Flynn," says Gene, with a fine disregard for accuracy.

"As for me, I'm not under Rickard's management," adds the champ.

Immediately, the hue and cry of the small fry swells to a roar of triumph.

"Tunney says he's not tied to Rickard," they proclaim.

"I'll match him," says Mullens.

"And I, and I," chorus the others.

Gene chimes in with a statement to the effect that he wants to fight three times in 1928, which would seem to provide enough material for several promoters.

Tex Rickard shifts his cigar over to the other corner of his mouth and says that Tunney, too, is full of prunes. Tex knows how many world's championship heavyweight fights can be held in a twelve-month without killing the goose that's laying the golden egg.

Exactly one.

Philadelphia sportsmen are said to have entered the promotorial war zone with an offer of $750,000 to Tunney for a bout there next summer. Mullens has selected Chicago, although he points out that Chairman Jim Farley of the New York State athletic commission has given him permission to stage a heavyweight championship fight here in New York.

Which certainly was nice of Mr. Farley.

Humbert Fugazy, who got the Tunney matching bee in his bonnet a year ago, and was badly stung, is treading a bit warily this time. But Humbert says he has "been approached by representatices of Gene Tunney regarding the promotion of the next championship fight. Humbert has a $500,000 promise ready for the next approacher.

Floyd Fitzsimmons always was my favorite winter promoter of summer bouts. It seemed as though his imagination stretched further with less provocation than that of any of the others. Probably Floyd will be along with an offer for Michigan City, million dollar guarantee and all the trimmings.

After a while the storm will subside, and in the good old summer time Tex Rickard will go ahead without any particular fuss and feathers and attend to the promotion of the next heavyweight championship fight.

Keeping Watermelons

The bureau of plant industry says that by coating a watermelon with paraffin it may be kept quite well until Christmas, although the quality will be inferior. There is no way to keep a watermelon all winter satisfactorily.

YALE-PRINCETON, ARMY-NOTRE DAME

THESE LEAD IN STRENUOUS GAMES OF THE EASTERN SECTOR

New York, Nov. 11. — (U.P.)—A wealth of good football games, led by Yale-Princeton and Army-Notre Dame, are on Saturday's football schedule for the east.

New York and New Haven will be the scenes of the immense crowds.

Here Knute Rockne will bring his thus far undefeated Irish to play the stubborn Army team. It is estimated 75,000 people will watch this annual game.

Yale bowl will be the scene of the other big eastern game when the Tiger advances, unbeaten, on the crippled Yale team. Yale is crippled sorely. It has lost the services of Bruce Caldwell, star back, through ineligibility. Odds favor Princeton.

Harvard meets Brown. The famous "Iron Men" of last season have been unable to do much this year.

The powerful New York university team journeys down to State College, Pa., to play Penn State.

A game of great interest will be at Pittsburgh where the undefeated Pitt team meets Nebraska university. Nebraska has been beaten but once—by Missouri—and has a powerful attack centering around Presnell.

Malodorous Bilge Water

The water that collects in bilges has a peculiar fetid odor which is very strong if the bilges are not cleaned often. In the navy bilges are pumped out at least once daily and thoroughly cleaned once a week.

HANDICAP DOUBLES TOURNEY OPENS AT ALLEYS SUNDAY

ENTRIES WILL CARRY THE HANDICAP AS ESTABLISHED IN THE CITY BOWLING LEAGUE

ROBERT BLOCK, PROPRIETOR, RECEIVES NECESSARY SANCTION FOR FOUR ALLEYS

A handicap round robin doubles tourney will start at Block's bowling alleys next Sunday, November 13, and will continue until the following Saturday night.

Entries will carry the handicap as established in the city league, and will roll a game on each of the four alleys.

Bowlers may enter as often as they like providing they make a change in partners. The winners will be declared "doubles champions" of the city league.

Robert Block, proprietor of the alleys stated today that the City Bowling Association and the City Bowling League teams, as well as the bowling alleys have been sanctioned by the American Bowling Congress and the necessary credentials, neatly framed, are now hanging in the alleys.

These sanctions show that the alleys are regulation in every way, and that bowlers from all regulation alleys may bowl on them and receive national recognition for high scores bowled. Also, all teams in the city may bowl in any recognized A. B. C. tournament without paying any extra fees.

COW GIRL AND RODEO RIDER TELLS HER STORY

LORENA TRICKEY RELATES TALE OF LAWLESS LOVE IN COURT

LED HER TO PLUNGE KNIFE INTO HARD-BOILED "SLIM HARRIS"

Lakeview, Ore., Nov. 11.—(U.P.)—Lorena Trickey, cowgirl and rodeo rider, has told her story of lawless love that led her to plunge a knife into the body of curly-headed, hard-boiled "Slim" Harris, and today her attorneys wound up routine details of her defense.

The case of the girl charged with the murder of her lover may reach the jury sometime tomorrow. Conclusion of the defense's case seemed likely to be perfunctory. The sobbing tale of passion, cruelty and fear told by the girl last night was admittedly the chief hope of the defense to win her freedom. It was a story that promised to become a legend of the fading frontier.

As the little "hard rider" of the rodeos sobbed out the sory of the attack which, she said, forced her to kill Harris, two women fainted, others throughout the courtroom were crying openly, and hard boiled ranch hands stared wide-eyed.

The courtroom was filled. Men stood on top of the unlighted stove.

Fifty persons were milling about the door trying to catch just a glimpse of the dramatic episode within.

Outside, snow was falling.

Slowly, haltingly, for two hours the little cowgirl queen, who has spent her life on the ranges since she ran away from high school to join a wild-west outfit, told of her love for Harris, their courtship, her belief that Slim would marry her, and his drunken cruelty.

On the night of the fatal quarrel, she said, she found Slim drunk at round-up headquarters and she was unable to get him to the car until Pat McCarthy, a cowboy friend, urged him to go. She confided in Pat that she had been unable to get Slim to care for the horses.

"Why don't you keep your troubles to yourself?" she said Slim snarled as they started that ride.

During the ride, Harris started an argument, she said. He became so menacing and dangerous that she attempted to leap from the automobile, but he knocked her to the floor of the machine.

"Damn you, I'll kill you!" she said Harris shouted.

"Then I realized now drunk he really was," she testified.

"I was terrified and I thought he would kill me. I reached in my pocket and got the knife I had bought earlier to mend a bridle. Finally getting it open, I hid it between my knees, defending myself as best I could against his blows. Twice I almost threw the knife out of the car.

"I was scared but I didn't want to hurt him. He kept beating me and I became desperate. Finally, I lunged out with the sharp knife, hoping I'd hit him on the breast bone and not injure him seriously.

"The blade struck home and Slim clutched at his breast. I leaped from the car and started running toward the rodeo barn. Slim started after me.

"I looked back twice and the second time saw he was gaining on me. Then I glanced back again only to see my girlhood idol sprawled in the dust."

As she sobbed out that last sentence she broke completely. One woman fainted. The crowd stirred restlessly.

In a moment, however, she was the "hard" rider again and regained her composure.

"I said," she continued, "Slim, what's the matter?" He replied, 'God, Lorena, you killed me.' It was the first time he had called me by that sweetheart name for years and oh, how I wanted to die with him. It hurt so much and God knows I loved him, drunkenness and all.

"I kneeled in the dust of the road and held him in my lap, putting my hand on his breast with a dread in my heart.

"I felt the warm blood gushing from that awful knife wound.

"Then I began to scream, but no one was near. It was lonesome there, and I was so helpless. I knew a cowboy's hell in those few minutes."

The rest was anti-climax. She told how help came—too late. She admitted she lied at first because she loved her cowboy and she did not want anybody to know she killed him.

Just before Miss Trickey took the stand to tell her story, Charlie Snell, testified that she had tried to borrow a knife from him to mend a bridle the afternoon before the killing. It was when he told her he had none that she went to the hardware store and bought the knife with which she slew her lover, it was brought out.

"Out All Night," Denny Feature Goes Big Here

"Out All Night," in which Universal is starring Reginald Denny, is a picture that is certain to satisfy the most ardent admirer of good, clean, smooth running farce comedy.

This newest production of one of the greatest comedy stars on the screen is now at the Lyceum theatre and was given a great reception at its premiere showing last night.

KING PURNELL FINDS HIMSELF WITHOUT KINGDOM

AFTER HE HAD ENJOYED 23 YEARS OF EASE, PLENTY AND POWER

HAD LONG BEEN CENTRAL FIGURE IN THE HOUSE OF DAVID

St. Joseph, Mich., Nov. 11.—(UP)—King Ben Purnell, who enjoyed 23 years of ease, plenty and power, found himself today without a kingdom.

He has long been the central figure in the religious colony which he called the House of David. He has been credited with divine power. He has been assailed as a philander who founded the colony for material gain and the right to take young girls as mistresses.

He has been prosecuted by the state on complaints of girl members of his colony. For three years he was a fugitive from justice.

And he has emerged still the dominant man who always has seen his followers subservient to his will, although he is now an invalid.

He was shorn by the state of Michigan of his power and the right to guide the destinies of his colony.

A decision by Judge Louis H. Fead yesterday took the House of David from Purnell's control. It provided for appointment of a receiver to handle affairs of the colony.

But today King Ben's followers, undaunted by the adverse verdict, again came to his aid with intimations that they planned to appeal Judge Fead's decision.

They still believe in Ben Purnell's "Divinity." They still think he can provide for them everlasting life. They will tell you that he is the only one who can hold the colony together.

The "everlasting life" was one of Purnell's promises to his flock, provided they "lived right." When a colonist did die, Purnell attributed it to "an evil deed," and the rest believed him.

The court ruling yesterday gave the colonists the right to continue to maintain the House of David as a religious sect. It also gave any colonist the right to cash his assets and leave.

Heretofore all assets of the colony have been controlled by Purnell and his wife, "Queen Mary," and it is reported that several colonists have failed in their attempts to gain property once held by them.

There is doubt whether the colony can survive.

But one fact is certain. Despite all condemnations and all charges, King Ben is still the dominant "divine" figure of the House of David—to its members.

FUGITIVES FROM JUSTICE ARRESTED

Chicago, Nov. 11.—(U.P.)—Dave Pleason, St. Paul fugitive from justice, was arrested here today by a United States special intelligence officer, Clark Converse. He will be arraigned before a U. S. commissioner later today for a hearing on removal to St. Paul.

Pleason was under arrest in St. Paul on a charge of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law. He posted a bond of $5,000 and then fled to Chicago, authorities say. It is alleged he headed a St. Paul syndicate which made alcohol from molasses by a new process.

The beauty killer

HERE, it strikes a beautiful woman—and in a few years her charm will have fled. . . . Here, it grips a promising man—soon he will sink, with blighted prospects, into obscurity.

What a deadly affliction constipation is! Thief of youth. Robber of strength. Evil forerunner of disease and misery! It destroys health! It kills beauty!

What a blessing that there is relief from this dreadful scourge! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation—promptly.

Why ALL-BRAN alone is effective

ALL-BRAN has "bulk." This bulk absorbs moisture and carries it through the intestines, gently distending them—cleansing, eliminating poisonous wastes. How different from part-bran products which contains so little bulk that there is hardly enough to have any effect at all. That is why doctors recommend ALL-BRAN. Because ALL-BRAN is 100% bran.

Different from habit-forming drugs

And contrast ALL-BRAN with dangerous drugs and pills—which become useless unless the dose is constantly increased. ALL-BRAN is delicious with milk or cream — and add fruits or honey. Let it soak a few moments to bring out all its nut-like flavor. Serve it with other cereals. In soups. Recipes on every package.

Don't risk a part-bran substitute. Insist on genuine Kellogg's — the original ALL-BRAN. Sold by all grocers. Served at hotels, restaurants and cafeterias. On diners. Made by the Kellogg Company in Battle Creek, Mich. Write for free "Treatise on Constipation."

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

Three weeks were spent in the California snow country by the company making "Back to God's Country," the Universal-Jewel which will open at the Lyceum Saturday.

"Out All Night." Denny Feature Goes Big Here

"Out All Night," in which Universal is starring Reginald Denny, is a picture that is certain to satisfy the most ardent admirer of good, clean, smooth running farce comedy.

This newest production of one of the greatest comedy stars on the screen is now at the Lyceum theatre and was given a great reception at its premiere showing last night.

Why Shouldn't He?

"Americans," says a critical visitor from abroad, "have a penchant for giving themselves high-sounding business titles." There used to be a local street sweeper who called himself a man-about-town.—Terre Haute Tribune.

KING PURNELL FINDS HIMSELF WITHOUT KINGDOM

AFTER HE HAD ENJOYED 23 YEARS OF EASE, PLENTY AND POWER

HAD LONG BEEN CENTRAL FIGURE IN THE HOUSE OF DAVID

St. Joseph, Mich., Nov. 11.—(UP)—King Ben Purnell, who enjoyed 23 years of ease, plenty and power, found himself today without a kingdom.

He has long been the central figure in the religious colony which he called the House of David. He has been credited with divine power. He has been assailed as a philander who founded the colony for material gain and the right to take young girls as mistresses.

He has been prosecuted by the state on complaints of girl members of his colony. For three years he was a fugitive from justice.

And he has emerged still the dominant man who always has seen his followers subservient to his will, although he is now an invalid.

He was shorn by the state of Michigan of his power and the right to guide the destinies of his colony.

A decision by Judge Louis H. Fead yesterday took the House of David from Purnell's control. It provided for appointment of a receiver to handle affairs of the colony.

But today King Ben's followers, undaunted by the adverse verdict, again came to his aid with intimations that they planned to appeal Judge Fead's decision.

They still believe in Ben Purnell's "Divinity." They still think he can provide for them everlasting life. They will tell you that he is the only one who can hold the colony together.

The "everlasting life" was one of Purnell's promises to his flock, provided they "lived right." When a colonist did die, Purnell attributed it to "an evil deed," and the rest believed him.

The court ruling yesterday gave the colonists the right to continue to maintain the House of David as a religious sect. It also gave any colonist the right to cash his assets and leave.

Heretofore all assets of the colony have been controlled by Purnell and his wife, "Queen Mary," and it is reported that several colonists have failed in their attempts to gain property once held by them.

There is doubt whether the colony can survive.

But one fact is certain. Despite all condemnations and all charges, King Ben is still the dominant "divine" figure of the House of David—to its members.

FUGITIVES FROM JUSTICE ARRESTED

Chicago, Nov. 11.—(U.P.)—Dave Pleason, St. Paul fugitive from justice, was arrested here today by a United States special intelligence officer, Clark Converse. He will be arraigned before a U. S. commissioner later today for a hearing on removal to St. Paul.

Pleason was under arrest in St. Paul on a charge of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law. He posted a bond of $5,000 and then fled to Chicago, authorities say. It is alleged he headed a St. Paul syndicate which made alcohol from molasses by a new process.

BOSNIAN FORESTS IN JUGO-SLAVIA ARE ABLAZE TODAY

Belgrade, Jugo-Slavia, Nov. 11.—(U.P.)—Forests in the timber country of the Bosnian province of Savidovitch were ablaze today, endangering lumber yards and throwing the population into panic.

The beauty killer

HERE, it strikes a beautiful woman—and in a few years her charm will have fled. . . . Here, it grips a promising man—soon he will sink, with blighted prospects, into obscurity.

What a deadly affliction constipation is! Thief of youth. Robber of strength. Evil forerunner of disease and misery! It destroys health! It kills beauty!

What a blessing that there is relief from this dreadful scourge! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation—promptly.

Why ALL-BRAN alone is effective

ALL-BRAN has "bulk." This bulk absorbs moisture and carries it through the intestines, gently distending them—cleansing, eliminating poisonous wastes. How different from part-bran products which contains so little bulk that there is hardly enough to have any effect at all. That is why doctors recommend ALL-BRAN. Because ALL-BRAN is 100% bran.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

Different from habit-forming drugs

And contrast ALL-BRAN with dangerous drugs and pills—which become useless unless the dose is constantly increased. ALL-BRAN is delicious with milk or cream — and add fruits or honey. Let it soak a few moments to bring out all its nut-like flavor. Serve it with other cereals. In soups. Recipes on every package.

Don't risk a part-bran substitute. Insist on genuine Kellogg's — the original ALL-BRAN. Sold by all grocers. Served at hotels, restaurants and cafeterias. On diners. Made by the Kellogg Company in Battle Creek, Mich. Write for free "Treatise on Constipation."

Service and Speeches Urging Law Enforcement at St. Paul's Church

Nine years ago today in the early hours two words flashed across continents to millions of people, "Armistice Signed." It came with a thankful tingle to the ears of the great American republic and was the necessary incentive for one of the greatest outbursts of joyfullness ever created.

It flashed to Brainerd and the Brainerd Daily Dispatch came out with an extra with block type. The news boys crying the glad news through the streets awoke the residents and in but a few minutes streets were crowded with citizens expressing their joy in whatever way they desired. Later the "boys" came back and there were other celebrations.

And today, this ninth anniversary of the signing of the Armistice, Brainerd prepared to celebrate the close of the world war in devotions, banquets, and joyfulness.

Patriotic services with speeches urging law enforcement were to be held at 8 o'clock tonight at the St. Paul's Episcopal church.

The Masons, their wives, and sweethearts, Eastern Star members and escorts were in attendance at a banquet tonight in the Masonic hall to be followed by a program and dance.

And the American Legion were preparing to put over a jubilant dance in the U. C. T. auditorium to start at 8:30 o'clock. Mayor Frank E. Little in a proclamation urged citizens to take part in the ex-service men's dance where all are assured a good time. The committee in charge of arrangements are: Al Veillette, Bob Anderson, Ernest Gepson, Al Englund, Ben Anderson.

Brainerd streets were decorated today with flags and bunting. All schools in the city closed at noon in observance of the holiday. Banks were closed and the majority of the offices at the court house observed the day by closing their doors.

The weather turned out wintry and promised even to become colder as the day progressed.

JURY ACQUITS FRANK CRUMMIT

Returns Verdict in District Court After Six Hours Deliberation

Three Plead Guilty on Liquor Sale Charges; Receive Sentences

After deliberating for six hours, the jury brought back a verdict of acquittal at 9 o'clock last evening in the case of Frank Crummit, Pine River, charged with assault upon Hjalmer Olson, village marshal of Jenkins at a dance in Jenkins recently.

Crummit was one of a party of four charged with assault. John Bryant and Roy Bryant were found guilty of the charge at their trial in district court with sentence deferred to a later date. Howard Robideau, fourth member of the party will be given a separate trial possibly at the close of the criminal calendar.

District court adjourned last night to be continued on Monday morning. Judge Bert Fessler, presiding judge, will spend the week end at his home in Duluth.

George Dyke, Merrifield, pleaded guilty to sale of liquor yesterday and was sentenced to pay a fine of $150 and 60 days in jail.

Claude James Merrifield pleaded guilty to sale of intoxicating liquor and was sentenced to 60 days in jail with a fine of $150.

Harry Hayes pleaded guilty to sale of liquor and was sentenced to pay a fine of $150 and 90 days in jail with an additional 90 days if the fine is not paid. Sentence was suspended until the November 1928 term of court.

Harvy Chatfield charged with incest will be up for trial Monday. He resides at Crosby.

MRS. M. A. BRONSON ENTERTAINS D. A. R.

Members Received at Home of Mrs. R. T. Campbell; Twelve Members Attend

PRICELESS HEIRLOOM SHOWN

Singing of Armistice, Nov. 11, 1918 Celebrated 298th Anniversary of Mayflower Compact

Mrs. M. A. Bronson entertained the members of Samuel Huntington Chapter, D. A. R. at a dinner at the home of Mrs. R. T. Campbell last Tuesday.

A most delicious repast was served, the following ladies being present: Mesdames R. T. Campbell, W. H. Gemmell, Irma Hartley, Angus Murray, Louis Knudsen, J. R. Smith, F. W. Wieland, W. A. M. Johnstone, Albert Fox, J. G. Heald, Miss Rebecca Cassell, Miss Anne Thorpe.

A very interesting feature of this gathering was the table cloth upon which the dinner was served. This was a very large and handsome piece of work, woven in 1806 and edged with lace knitted of the same linen. The original shuttles and some of the linen thread were also exhibited. These are in the possession of Mrs. Bronson and are among her many priceless heirlooms.

Very few people have had occasion to note that the day of the signing of the Armistice—Nov. 11, 1918—celebrated the 298th anniversary of the signing of the Mayflower Compact, Nov. 11, 1620, it was pointed out to the gathering.

This covenant, signed by all of the Pilgrims on board the vessel, was their agreement to make and obey proper laws for the new colony steeling in New England.

Thirty years later their governor, Tom Bradford, wrote a history of the colony naming all of the original Pilgrims and adding notes concerning their fate.

He wrote, "These, being aboute a hundred sowls, came over in this first ship . . . and of the old stock there are yet living this present year, 1650, nere 30 persons . . . The greater halfe dyed in the generall mortality and most of them in 2 or three monthes time."

In assisting an inquirer, the regent of the Brainerd D. A. R., Mrs. M. A. Bronson, received word, after some correspondence, that this document . . . existence in the Massachusetts state library.

Parts of Gov. Bradford's account were read by Mrs. J. G. Heald at a recent meeting of the D. A. R. held at the home of Mrs. R. T. Campbell.

The chapter went on record as heartily supporting the decision of the state supreme court regarding the reading of Scripture in the public schools.

The report given by the retiring state regent at the national congress D. A. R. at Washington was read. She outlined the outstanding activities of Minnesota chapters in Americanization work, in assisting schools approved by the National society, in giving medals or prizes to students for essay work in history, civics, etc., in supporting a student loan fund, in starting the movement for a chapel at Ft. Snelling, in assisting in some very elaborate patriotic celebrations, in fitting up a historical booth at the state fair and in supporing and improving the Sibley House at Mendota which bids fair to being one of the finest historical museums of the northwest.

PRIVATE DEVOTIONS

Christian People Everywhere Urged to Make This Day One of Prayer

Christian people everywhere are urged to make Armistice Day a day of prayer and fasting for China. Never in the history of Missions in that country has such a crisis been faced as at the present time. Great philanthropic and evangelistic enterprises that represent untold sacrifice are in grave danger unless God intervenes.

A great movement has just been culminated in the distributing of a million New Testaments in the land. This has been a great inter-denominational effort in which Christian missionaries of all creeds have united. What it may mean to that land it is impossible to say, yet if the seed which has been so effectually sown be watered by prayer, results a hundred fold may be expected.

The Brainerd Federation of Church Women are very interested in this, and while having no public service, all of their members are urged to participate in their private devotions. Mrs. E. P. Slipp, who acts as sort of a regional secretary for this, is especially anxious to secure the prayerful interest of all Christian people.

Man Claims Body "Looks Like a McIntyre Who Lived in Brainerd"

Sheriff Claus Theorin received word this morning from Little Falls that the unidentified man shot to death in a haystack by a farmer who mistook him for a prowling animal may be a "McIntyre," who recently lived in Pine River and later moved to Brainerd.

A Little Falls man called in an effort to establish to identity of the dead man stated he looks like one of the McIntyres who lived at Pine River and later moved to Brainerd."

The police have no means to identify the man as no clues to his identity were found on his person.

Sheriff Claus Theorin requests today that any relatives of McIntyre communicate with him immediately in an effort to definitely establish to identity of the man.

Singing of Armistice, Nov. 11, 1918 Celebrated 298th Anniversary of Mayflower Compact

Mrs. M. A. Bronson entertained the members of Samuel Huntington Chapter, D. A. R. at a dinner at the home of Mrs. R. T. Campbell last Tuesday.

A most delicious repast was served, the following ladies being present: Mesdames R. T. Campbell, W. H. Gemmell, Irma Hartley, Angus Murray, Louis Knudsen, J. R. Smith, F. W. Wieland, W. A. M. Johnstone, Albert Fox, J. G. Heald, Miss Rebecca Cassell, Miss Anne Thorpe.

A very interesting feature of this gathering was the table cloth upon which the dinner was served. This was a very large and handsome piece of work, woven in 1806 and edged with lace knitted of the same linen. The original shuttles and some of the linen thread were also exhibited. These are in the possession of Mrs. Bronson and are among her many priceless heirlooms.

Very few people have had occasion to note that the day of the signing of the Armistice—Nov. 11, 1918—celebrated the 298th anniversary of the signing of the Mayflower Compact, Nov. 11, 1620, it was pointed out to the gathering.

This covenant, signed by all of the Pilgrims on board the vessel, was their agreement to make and obey proper laws for the new colony steeling in New England.

Thirty years later their governor, Tom Bradford, wrote a history of the colony naming all of the original Pilgrims and adding notes concerning their fate.

He wrote, "These, being aboute a hundred sowls, came over in this first ship . . . and of the old stock there are yet living this present year, 1650, nere 30 persons. . . . The greater halfe dyed in the generall mortality and most of them in 2 or three monthes time."

In assisting an inquirer, the regent of the Brainerd D. A. R., Mrs. M. A. Bronson, received word, after some correspondence, that this document [illegible] existence in the Massachusetts state library.

Parts of Gov. Bradford's account were read by Mrs. J. G. Heald at a recent meeting of the D. A. R. held at the home of Mrs. R. T. Campbell.

The chapter went on record as heartily supporting the decision of the state supreme court regarding the reading of Scripture in the public schools.

The report given by the retiring state regent at the national congress D. A. R. at Washington was read. She outlined the outstanding activities of Minnesota chapters in Americanization work, in assisting schools approved by the National society, in giving medals or prizes to students for essay work in history, civics, etc., in supporting a student loan fund, in starting the movement for a chapel at Ft. Snelling, in assisting in some very elaborate patriotic celebrations, in fitting up a historical booth at the state fair and in supporing and improving the Sibley House at Mendota which bids fair to being one of the finest historical museums of the northwest.

PRIVATE DEVOTIONS

Christian people everywhere are urged to make Armistice Day a day of prayer and fasting for China. Never in the history of Missions in that country has such a crisis been faced as at the present time. Great philanthropic and evangelistic enterprises that represent untold sacrifice are in grave danger unless God intervenes.

A great movement has just been culminated in the distributing of a million New Testaments in the land. This has been a great inter-denominational effort in which Christian missionaries of all creeds have united. What it may mean to that land it is impossible to say, yet if the seed which has been so effectually sown be watered by prayer, results a hundred fold may be expected.

The Brainerd Federation of Church Women are very interested in this, and while having no public service, all of their members are urged to participate in their private devotions. Mrs. E. P. Slipp, who acts as sort of a regional secretary for this, is especially anxious to secure the prayerful interest of all Christian people.

Man Claims Body "Looks Like a McIntyre Who Lived in Brainerd"

Sheriff Claus Theorin received word this morning from Little Falls that the unidentified man shot to death in a haystack by a farmer who mistook him for a prowling animal may be a "McIntyre," who recently lived in Pine River and later moved to Brainerd.

A Little Falls man called in an effort to establish to identity of the dead man stated "he looks like one of the McIntyres who lived at Pine River and later moved to Brainerd."

The police have no means to identify the man as no clues to his identity were found on his person.

Sheriff Claus Theorin requests today that any relatives of McIntyre communicate with him immediately in an effort to definitely establish to identity of the man.

SYNOPSIS

When the sealing schooner "Sea Sprite" docks in Frisco after a terrific cruise her skipper, Hurricane Haley, is tired of the sea and hopes to find forgetfulness among the pleasures of the Frisco dockfront. At "The Ship," an old resort of his, he finds a lot of old friends, but in search of real excitement he finds his way to Crawley's Riverside where "Frisco Polly" is queen. Polly is a recent acquisition and as such does not get along with the old star. As Crawley is counting his crowded house, he is told that Polly and Bessie, the old star, are fighting again.

"They're at it again," shouted the backstage attendant in frightened tones as he rushed up to Crawley. That gentleman moved his cigar from one side of his mouth to the other, and then his eyes flashed angrily.

He did not have to be told any more, for he knew Blonde Bessie's feelings towards her successor. He knew that she had repeatedly encouraged toughs to sit up front and try to break up the act. He remembered the night when the toughs who had come to break up the act had remained to wonder at the life and vivacity of the kid and had saved their jeers for Bessie. All this he knew before he turned on his heel for the scene of hostilities.

Backstage the women continued their argument. Their street clothing was in strips, their hair dishevelled, their arms scratched and bleeding, but they kept at it, biting, swearing, punching. Crawley's entrance brought the row to an end.

"What are you two bums doing now?" he howled.

"What the hell is it to you?" Bessie retorted.

Crawley crossed the room in two strides, and, picking Bessie up with one hand, he sent her reeling against the wall.

"You loud-mouthed hussy," he told her, "I guess you think that you own this place, but unless you get another think on you'll be dancing for the Chinks."

Blonde Bessie cowered. She knew she was getting fat and that Polly was a success was undeniable. It was the inexorable rule of the world the old ones, their strength gone, must make way for the young. Bessie was quiet; there were still a few crumbs that might fall to her

"As for you," Crawley turned to Polly, "you damned little spitfire, you better hold your tongue if you want to hold your job. I can pick your kind up in the streets any day."

"Well, I ain't going to take guff from no fat——" began Polly.

"Shut up and get ready, the pair of you. Where in hell do you think you are. Come on, snap into it and remember you're here to work and do as I say. That goes for the pair of you." He stalked out chewing majestically on the end of his cigar.

As the door closed the two women turned and glared at one another. Polly was willing to carry on the fight, but Bessie had seen the writing on the wall, and her desire for combat was gone. Polly would have no more trouble with Bessie except in a much more underhand way. Meanwhile the Riverside kept on filling till there was room for no more. The strains of the orchestra came backstage and the applause that greeted the rough comedians who made up the evening's entertainment. Soon they would get their call and would have to go on. They must forget the quarrel, the insults, the bruises and go out and sing and dance.

During the performance of the comedians Haley arrived and found the crowd at Crawley's as friendly as at the "Ship." Elbows Crawley took personal charge and treated Hurricane like a long lost brother. Again he admitted that life was wonderful. The comedians left the stage to a chorus of mingled laughs, claps and jeers, and Blonde Bessie took the stage. Hurricane had seen her before, and if this was the girl that was to knock his eye out, then he was sure going back to Wooden Leg Cribbins to tell him what he thought of him. He told "Elbows" as much.

"Elbows" had been talking to the lounger from the "Ship," and anything that Hurricane said would have been agreeable to him. He noted, however, that Hurricane was impatient and with Polly's help saw profitable picking in the near future.

Bessie sang and danced, and the crowd waited more or less patiently. Then a loud chorus of shouts and clappings heralded the arrival of Polly. Hurricane turned towards the stage and looked straight at her. Crawley had given him the most noticeable table in the place, and Polly had been taught to kick and smile a little oftener at that table than she did to the rest. Hurricane saw her. She was what he had been dreaming about. Here was life indeed, and, well, he would speak to Crawley afterwards.

Polly wore a little hat, set at a saucy angle, with a feather that came almost to her nose. Long yellow gloves ran almost to her armpits, and her little short brown skirt revealed most of her well shaped legs. Her waist, covered with large pearly buttons, was a riot of color, and in her hand was a parasol, swinging flippantly. Polly's description would be incomplete, without reference to that impudent, challenging look, that seemed to indicate a supreme contempt for everything and everybody. She symbolized the old Embarcadero, the very people sitting out there in front of her, and they roared and stamped their approval.

"How's Mr. Ham-bone this evening?" she said addressing the leader of the orchestra. The crowd howled again.

"Get to your dawnce, kid, you h'aint no comic," shouted a cockney, seated high in the roof. His blossom like nose made him noticeable as he leaned over the gallery rail.

Quick as a flash Polly turned to meet her critic.

"Well, Hif Hit H'aint sweet little Gladiola, we 'ave wif hus this gentle night hof June," she mocked. The audience looked up and roared once more. Encouraged she went on.

"'Ave a care, dearie, and keep your matches away from your smelling piece, or we'll h'awl be aplaying Harps wif the h'angels afore morning."

The audience vociferated its approval, and the inebriated cockney was sorry he had spoken.

Two people were watching more intently than the rest. Blonde Bessie, who stood in the wings, wishing that she could find some way to destroy this brat who had stolen her place in the hearts of the crowd. And Hurricane, who saw in Polly all the life and animation that he had dreamed was in the world. In these few moments he had become her greatest admirer. Beckoning Crawley he asked:

"Who's the kid you got there, she don't belong here, she's got more pep than anything I ever saw. Can I see her when she's through with this?"

Tickled silly, Crawley of course said he would try. The orchestra started and Polly began to dance. Everyone sat back tense, that they might watch her. She did not move, she flowed. She danced in a way that tore the heart out of every man who spotted her. The very lines of her body were an ecstasy, and as she danced she symbolized many things. Youth with all its freshness, the half-tones of Chinatown, the tawdry brazenry and frankness of the docks, while ever the touch of the devil alternately smouldered and flamed in her eyes.

Polly's was a novelty dance. The scene a windy street corner, and the breeze blew about the stage like a piece of thistle down, doing startling things to her skirt, until at the end it blew her off the stage to the accompaniment of sundry little screams.

The house was in an uproar, and Hurricane was breathless with excitement. During the dance Polly had turned to him often, and had smiled more than she usually did. Licking his lips, which were strangely dry, he turned to remind Crawley of his promise, when a well known voice broke in.

"How about it, Elbows, bring the girl out," it was Brady talking.

"How in hell did you get here," Hurricane snapped.

"My Gawd, you didn't think that I was going to stay on that rat-trap all night did you, no one's going to steal her, and I'm damned if I'm going to play watchman."

Ordinarily this would have brought a blow from Hurricane, but with his mind filled with Polly, he had hardly listened to his mate's tale

"Who's the kid you got here? She don't belong here."

2 MODERN SHEIKS FACE NOOSE OF THE HANGMAN

NOW OCCUPY CELLS IN THE DUBUQUE, IOWA, COUNTY JAIL

FEW MILES AWAY THEY KILLED THE GRANDMOTHER OF ONE OF BOYS

Dubuque, Iowa, Nov. 11—(UP)—Two modern sheiks, facing the hangman's noose, occupied cells in the Dubuque county jail here today. A few miles away they killed the grandmother of one of them because they needed money with which to pursue "grand opera careers," according to their confessions.

The youths are Leonard Cotta, 18, of Altoona, Wis., and Howard Kramer, 19, of Malta, Mont.

"We will never hang and we are going to face the music without any fear of the consequences for we did not intend to kill my grandmother," Cota said. "Do you think anyone would want to kill his grandmother?

"When we tell our story we will be turned loose."

The prisoners, accompanied by Sheriff Frank Kennedy and his deputy, T. J. Ryder, arrived here early today from St. Louis where they were arrested.

L. J. Cota, father of Leonard, declared that "not one dime of family money will be spent to protect my son."

"If he is guilty, he must pay the penalty," he said.

Young Cota, however, believed the $150,000 his mother will inherit through the death of his grandmother will be used in his defense.

Clarence Darrow, internationally famous criminal lawyer, will be retained to defend him, he predicted.

Allan J. Kane, county attorney of Dubuque county, said he would ask the death penalty for the boys.

SYNOPSIS

When the sealing schooner "Sea Sprite" docks in Frisco after a terrific cruise her skipper, Hurricane Haley, is tired of the sea and hopes to find forgetfulness among the pleasures of the Frisco dockfront. At "The Ship," an old resort of his, he finds a lot of old friends, but in search of real excitement he finds his way to Crawley's Riverside where "Frisco Polly" is queen. Polly is a recent acquisition and as such does not get along with the old star. As Crawley is counting his crowded house, he is told that Polly and Bessie, the old star, are fighting again.

"They're at it again," shouted the backstage attendant in frightened tones as he rushed up to Crawley. That gentleman moved his cigar from one side of his mouth to the other, and then his eyes flashed angrily.

He did not have to be told any more, for he knew Blonde Bessie's feelings towards her successor. He knew that she had repeatedly encouraged toughs to sit up front and try to break up the act. He remembered the night when the toughs who had come to break up the act had remained to wonder at the life and vivacity of the kid and had saved their jeers for Bessie. All this he knew before he turned on his heel for the scene of hostilities.

Backstage the women continued their argument. Their street clothing was in strips, their hair dishevelled, their arms scratched and bleeding, but they kept at it, biting, swearing, punching. Crawley's entrance brought the row to an end.

"What are you two bums doing now?" he howled.

"What the hell is it to you?" Bessie retorted.

Crawley crossed the room in two strides, and, picking Bessie up with one hand, he sent her reeling against the wall.

"You loud-mouthed hussy," he told her, "I guess you think that you own this place, but unless you get another think on you'll be dancing for the Chinks."

Blonde Bessie cowered. She knew she was getting fat and that Polly was a success was undeniable. It was the inexorable rule of the world the old ones, their strength gone, must make way for the young. Bessie was quiet; there were still a few crumbs that might fall to her

"As for you," Crawley turned to Polly, "you damned little spitfire, you better hold your tongue if you want to hold your job. I can pick your kind up in the streets any day."

"Well, I ain't going to take guff from no fat——" began Polly.

"Shut up and get ready, the pair of you. Where in hell do you think you are. Come on, snap into it and remember you're here to work and do as I say. That goes for the pair of you." He stalked out chewing majestically on the end of his cigar.

As the door closed the two women turned and glared at one another. Polly was willing to carry on the fight, but Bessie had seen the writing on the wall, and her desire for combat was gone. Polly would have no more trouble with Bessie except in a much more underhand way. Meanwhile the Riverside kept on filling till there was room for no more. The strains of the orchestra came backstage and the applause that greeted the rough comedians who made up the evening's entertainment. Soon they would get their call and would have to go on. They must forget the quarrel, the insults, the bruises and go out and sing and dance.

During the performance of the comedians Haley arrived and found the crowd at Crawley's as friendly as at the "Ship." Elbows Crawley took personal charge and treated Hurricane like a long lost brother. Again he admitted that life was wonderful. The comedians left the stage to a chorus of mingled laughs, claps and jeers, and Blonde Bessie took the stage. Hurricane had seen her before, and if this was the girl that was to knock his eye out, then he was sure going back to Wooden Leg Cribbins to tell him what he thought of him. He told "Elbows" as much.

"Elbows" had been talking to the lounger from the "Ship," and anything that Hurricane said would have been agreeable to him. He noted, however, that Hurricane was impatient and with Polly's help saw profitable picking in the near future.

Bessie sang and danced, and the crowd waited more or less patiently. Then a loud chorus of shouts and clappings heralded the arrival of Polly. Hurricane turned towards the stage and looked straight at her. Crawley had given him the most noticeable table in the place, and Polly had been taught to kick and smile a little oftener at that table than she did to the rest. Hurricane saw her. She was what he had been dreaming about. Here was life indeed, and, well, he would speak to Crawley afterwards.

Polly wore a little hat, set at a saucy angle, with a feather that came almost to her nose. Long yellow gloves ran almost to her armpits, and her little short brown skirt revealed most of her well shaped legs. Her waist, covered with large pearly buttons, was a riot of color, and in her hand was a parasol, swinging flippantly. Polly's description would be incomplete, without reference to that impudent, challenging look, that seemed to indicate a supreme contempt for everything and everybody. She symbolized the old Embarcadero, the very people sitting out there in front of her, and they roared and stamped their approval.

"How's Mr. Ham-bone this evening?" she said addressing the leader of the orchestra. The crowd howled again.

"Get to your dawnce, kid, you h'aint no comic," shouted a cockney, seated high in the roof. His blossom like nose made him noticeable as he leaned over the gallery rail.

Quick as a flash Polly turned to meet her critic.

"Well, Hif Hit H'aint sweet little Gladiola, we 'ave wif hus this gentle night hof June," she mocked. The audience looked up and roared once more. Encouraged she went on.

"'Ave a care, dearie, and keep your matches away from your smelling piece, or we'll h'awl be aplaying Harps wif the h'angels afore morning."

The audience vociferated its approval, and the inebriated cockney was sorry he had spoken.

Two people were watching more intently than the rest. Blonde Bessie, who stood in the wings, wishing that she could find some way to destroy this brat who had stolen her place in the hearts of the crowd. And Hurricane, who saw in Polly all the life and animation that he had dreamed was in the world. In these few moments he had become her greatest admirer. Beckoning Crawley he asked:

"Who's the kid you got there, she don't belong here, she's got more pep than anything I ever saw. Can I see her when she's through with this?"

Tickled silly, Crawley of course said he would try. The orchestra started and Polly began to dance. Everyone sat back tense, that they might watch her. She did not move, she flowed. She danced in a way that tore the heart out of every man who spotted her. The very lines of her body were an ecstasy, and as she danced she symbolized many things. Youth with all its freshness, the half-tones of Chinatown, the tawdry brazenry and frankness of the docks, while ever the touch of the devil alternately smouldered and flamed in her eyes.

Polly's was a novelty dance. The scene a windy street corner, and the breeze blew about the stage like a piece of thistle down, doing startling things to her skirt, until at the end it blew her off the stage to the accompaniment of sundry little screams.

The house was in an uproar, and Hurricane was breathless with excitement. During the dance Polly had turned to him often, and had smiled more than she usually did. Licking his lips, which were strangely dry, he turned to remind Crawley of his promise, when a well known voice broke in.

"How about it, Elbows, bring the girl out," it was Brady talking.

"How in hell did you get here," Hurricane snapped.

"My Gawd, you didn't think that I was going to stay on that rat-trap all night did you, no one's going to steal her, and I'm damned if I'm going to play watchman."

Ordinarily this would have brought a blow from Hurricane, but with his mind filled with Polly, he had hardly listened to his mate's tale.

"Who's the kid you got here? She don't belong here."

NOW OCCUPY CELLS IN THE DUBUQUE, IOWA, COUNTY JAIL

FEW MILES AWAY THEY KILLED THE GRANDMOTHER OF ONE OF BOYS

Dubuque, Iowa, Nov. 11—(UP)—Two modern sheiks, facing the hangman's noose, occupied cells in the Dubuque county jail here today. A few miles away they killed the grandmother of one of them because they needed money with which to pursue "grand opera careers," according to their confessions.

The youths are Leonard Cotta, 18, of Altoona, Wis., and Howard Kramer, 19, of Malta, Mont.

"We will never hang and we are going to face the music without any fear of the consequences for we did not intend to kill my grandmother," Cota said. "Do you think anyone would want to kill his grandmother?

"When we tell our story we will be turned loose."

The prisoners, accompanied by Sheriff Frank Kennedy and his deputy, T. J. Ryder, arrived here early today from St. Louis where they were arrested.

L. J. Cota, father of Leonard, declared that "not one dime of family money will be spent to protect my son."

"If he is guilty, he must pay the penalty," he said.

Young Cota, however, believed the $150,000 his mother will inherit through the death of his grandmother will be used in his defense.

Clarence Darrow, internationally famous criminal lawyer, will be retained to defend him, he predicted.

Allan J. Kane, county attorney of Dubuque county, said he would ask the death penalty for the boys.
